

Andi Michele (Andrea Isaacs) has always sought to see the best in all people and contribute to the world in a positive way. Whether that has been as a Real Estate Advisor, in various networking arenas or bringing women together to connect to their own inner being and each other. Never expecting writing to be her calling, Andi found writing to be a cathartic practice during her awakening and never stopped. To write, teach and speak have become her purpose. Her current projects include a book and series of workshops that aim to help women rediscover who they are.

Andi has two wonderful teenage boys and enjoys all the moments with them, understanding adulthood is just around the corner. As a Colorado native, Andi loves the mountains, long hikes in nature, fishing and any time near water. She also highly values her yoga and meditation practice keeping her connected to the flow. Andi has a heart for many causes including: homelessness, education, world poverty and women's empowerment. Her greatest desire is to travel the world in an effort to give back and give hope.
